

DID YOU KNOW?

Cows don't actually have four stomachs; they have one stomach with four compartments.

About Our Miniature Highland Cows

Our fluffy "Mini Moos" are Miniature Highland Cattle, known for their long hair, gentle faces, and teddy bear-like appearance. The Highland breed originated in the Scottish Highlands and is famous for being hardy, intelligent, and affectionate once tamed.

Here at Howe Ranch, our calves are part of the national miniature and micro-miniature breeding program. We carefully select and raise them through a specialized embryo transfer program, which allows preservation of high-quality genetics while safely producing smaller, healthier cattle.

Training and Temperament

Cows are naturally cautious and do not seek human contact on their own. From the moment our calves are born, we work closely with them — bottle-feeding, brushing, and teaching them that people bring love, care, and treats. This early trust-building turns them into friendly, social "designer livestock" who truly enjoy human affection.

Fun Facts

- Mini Highland cows are about one-third the size of standard cattle!
- Their thick double coat keeps them warm in winter and sheds in summer.
- They love gentle brushing, snacks, and taking selfies with visitors.
- Highlands are one of the oldest registered cattle breeds in the world.

Their Job on the Farm

Our Mini Moos are the heart of the farm — ambassadors of connection, education, and joy. They help teach guests about animal care, responsible breeding, and the importance of trust between people and animals.
